Alternative dispute resolution firm expands its footprint in Southern California

SAN DIEGO – AUGUST 2nd, 2021 - Signature Resolution, a leader in alternative dispute resolution with offices in Los Angeles and Century City, announced today that it has opened a new office in San Diego, California.

“We’re excited for the opportunity to provide our alternative dispute resolution services locally to parties in San Diego,” said Dario Higuchi, managing director at Signature Resolution. “With a physical presence here and a range of amenities, this office gives us the chance to help attorneys and their clients in this region to resolve their disputes fairly and quickly, in person. We also look forward to giving back to this community and making a difference in San Diego County.”

To open its new location, Signature Resolution has recruited some of the most esteemed legal experts in the region, including Scott Slater Markus and the Hon. Margo Lewis Hoy (Ret.). Markus, San Diego’s leading attorney-mediator since 1992, will serve as a mediator for cases involving employment, professional liability, catastrophic injury, real property and business disputes. Judge Hoy, who recently retired from the bench after 11 years on the San Diego Superior Court, will handle disputes in all areas of family law.

The new office is located in Del Mar, with complimentary parking, in a neighborhood that includes numerous upscale restaurants, shops and boutique hotels. As is customary in Signature Resolution offices, the facility will feature a full-service cafe, a lounge for neutrals, state-of-the-art conference rooms with Zoom Rooms video conferencing equipment.

“Since our founding in 2017, we’ve been able to build a reputation nationwide for having an elite panel of neutrals and comfortable, sophisticated offices,” said Higuchi. “Opening a physical office in San Diego was important to us, and we’re eager to welcome new and existing clients into our new space and give them the resolutions they deserve.”
